

Media Release

19 December 2008

The hunt for Australia's Deadliest Artistic Director is on!

The Board of Yirra Yaakin Aboriginal Corporation has launched a nation-wide search to find an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander artist to take the helm of Australia's leading Indigenous theatre company.

Yirra Yaakin Chairman Clem Rodney said the board is looking for a talented, committed and creative person to take control of the award-winning, internationally acclaimed theatre company.

"This is an exciting opportunity for someone who is passionate about theatre and Indigenous storytelling to drive the company's future creative direction."

"Yirra Yaakin's new Artistic Director will be responsible for finding and developing exciting new Indigenous works for the company to present." Said Mr Rodney.

Based in the heart of the Noongar nation, YY Space is located in Murray Street Perth and it has its own 80 seat black box theatre.

Established in 1993, Yirra Yaakin is run by an all-Indigenous board and has a reputation for supporting and nurturing the careers of many Aboriginal artists.

Yirra Yaakin will advertise the position of Artistic Director in national media in mid-January.

For more information contact Paul MacPhail on ph: 08 9202 1966 mob: 0413 592 322 or email: paul@yirrayaakin.com.au

Media Enquiries: Michelle White | m +61 (0)439 948 183 | t +61 8 9202 1966 | e michelle@yirrayaakin.com.au

